Special meeting planned to discuss kindergarten funding

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
City and school officials met Wednesday to determine funds available for obtaining kindergarten classrooms for the Bay St. Louis Municipal School District.
After careful evaluation of existing loans and available funds, Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. and City Clerk Edward Favre informed school officials that up to $350,000 was available to be borrowed as a short term loan under the two mil limitation.
Frankiewicz said his recommendation to the school board would be to move quickly, using the funds available and build permanent space for kindergarten classrooms.
The official recommendation to the board will come from Superintendent J. D. McCullough in a special school board meeting to be called next week.
McCullough said he would schedule the meeting as soon as possible to insure classroom space is available to kindergarten students by September.
Members of the Bay-Waveland Parents for Quality Education questioned the board Monday in their regular meeting about the status of the acquisition of kindergarten classrooms for the school district.
Answering for the board, Waveland Elementary Principal James Baldree told the group assembled that the application for grant funds for program implementation was nearly complete and would be mailed in advance of the Feb. 28 deadline.
McCullough added that Baldree had been serving as his assistant in coordinating information needed for the funds application.

The parents group also requested the board to begin the assertive discipline program at elementary schools in the district.
In defense of their request the parents organization listed the following as basis for the program implementation in the other school:
— The Assertive Discipline Program has been successfully implemented at Bay High and Bay Junior High schools.
— Principals of schools change periodically. A policy statement would eliminate drastic changes in approaches to discipline.
— The Assertive Discipline Program is designed to allow teachers more time for teaching.
— Consistency throughout the school system would benefit both students and teachers.
— Inappropriate and ineffective discipline techniques ideally would be eliminated.
The board unanimously approved the request and the assertive discipline program will be implemented at the elementary schools by next year.
In other business the board:
— Designated Waveland Elementary as the voting precinct for the school board election coming up in March.
— Rescheduled board meetings in February and March to avoid conflicts with Mardi Gras and Spring Holidays. The meetings will be Feb. 17 and March 17.
— Granted the City of Bay St. Louis an easement for an eight inch water line to pass through school property.

Board hears second request for Hancock General building

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has received a second proposal for use of the Hancock General Hospital building.
The hospital building will become vacant after the completion of Hancock Medical Center, which is now under construction.
Wallace Bradley, director of the County Welfare Department, proposed Monday that his agency be moved into the old hospital because the department's present building needs repairs.
The remaining space could be used for other county agencies, Bradley said.
"We have been talking to all of you for some time about the need for more space, and you know we need some place liveable to work out of," he said.
Last week, however, a spokesman for a group of doctors on the Hancock General Hospital medical staff proposed that the building be used as a nursing home.
The doctors also proposed turning one section of the old hospital into a drug-alcohol treatment center.
Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro said the board had already agreed to consider the nursing home proposal.
"If the doctors don't come through on their proposal, I'm sure Mr. Bradley would have first priority, but we still have plenty of time before we need to make a decision," Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner said the hospital building needs roof repairs or a new roof and the county would have to furnish that if Bradley's proposal is accepted.
"We could justify the cost if we had enough county agencies to move in, but I don't see that right now," he said.

He asked Bradley to look into the possibility of obtaining some kind of funding for the project, stating that board members believe that financial help could be obtained through some type of matching grant if the county purchased land, constructed a new building and leased it to the department.
Woodrow Ladner, who attended the meeting with Bradley, said he had worked for the Welfare Department for two years and feels conditions in the present building are detrimental to visitors as well as employees.
One problem is lack of adequate temperature control, Ladner said. He explained that the heating system fails to work adequately during cold weather and that during hot periods, the temperature in the building is roughly the same as that outside.
"It's bad enough that these people, and most of them are sick or elderly, have to ask for help, and then they have to come where they must face these adverse conditions," Ladner explained.
In other business, the board:
— Accepted a petition from residents of BaySide Park requesting that the subdivision be declared a bird and game sanctuary;
— Agreed to postpone a Feb. 13 hearing on several other bird and game sanctuary request in order that the matter be readvertised to include BaySide Park;
— Approved a request to apply for a Housing and Urban Development grant to fund a water system for the Steep Hollow and Catahoula communities;
— Authorized the purchase of copy machines for the courthouse law library and the bookkeeper's office;
— Approved a tax exemption for St. Stanislaus College for land donated by Anthony Benigno and Rose Benigno; — Approved a request from Assistant District Attorney J.P. Compretta for a resolution asking the legislature to remove a $15,000 cap on the annual salary for the district's records clerk and to change the position from an appointed job to a hired position;
— Approved a request from Roger Dale Ladner for a resolution asking the legislature to allow a one mill tax for recreation;
— Turned down a request from County Engineer Larry Seal for permission to begin work on plans and specifications for reconstruction of Beach Road, with Board President A.A. Kellar citing lack of funds as the county's reason for postponing the project;
— Accepted a bid for a safe for the Justice Court office;
— Approved a request from

Deimer Wilcox for amendment of a proposed Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District ordinance, adding a provision allowing the district to provide water testing; and — Approved a request from Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge for a resolution asking the legislature to increase the amount of Homestead Exemption for the elderly and disabled.
The board meets again Jan. 30 at 9 a.m.

UNO to offer credit courses at Test Site

The University of New Orleans Metropolitan College is offering two physics courses and a mathematics course which carry college credit at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County this spring.
An undergraduate physics course on the principles of optics will meet Monday and Wednesday from 2-3:30 p.m. A graduate physics course on image restoration and enhancement will be offered on Tuesday from noon to 3:20 p.m. The time for the graduate math course in transform methods is to be announced.
UNO's spring semester begins Jan. 20. Walk-in registration and admissions for the two physics classes will be held Jan. 14 at 1 p.m. at the NSTL Conference Room, Building 1100, Room 103.
For information and a course guide, contact UNO's Metropolitan College at 504-286-7100.

Stolen truck recovered

BY DENA BISNETTE

A pick-up truck stolen in Mobile, Ala., has been recovered in Hancock County.
According to Highway Patrol Investigator T.P. Naylor, Trooper David Kenny recovered the vehicle when he stopped to help with an apparent vehicle breakdown on Interstate 10 at about 10 p.m. Tuesday.
Kenny recognized the tag number of the truck, a white 1984 Chevrolet, as having been reported as stolen.
The driver, a 14-year-old male juvenile from Mobile, was arrested and charged with the theft and was scheduled to be turned over to youth court authorities in Mobile Wednesday.
The truck has been returned to the owner.

Completed utility projects aid airpark in attracting industry

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Monday authorized the final steps in payment for major improvements recently completed at Stennis International Airpark.
These improvements include a new water well, an elevated water storage tank, an extensive drainage project and sewage collection and treatment system.
Engineer Carlos Cordon credits

these improvements for attracting industries to the airpark.
"Undoubtedly without these improvements the industrial airpark would have no significant development value to private enterprises or industry," he said.
"The improvements really make the park because they provide steady, reliable and potable water pressure, needed fire protection water supply and a sanitary sewage collection," Cordon added.

Prior to the improvements, water for the park was provided by a small well and pressurized water tank, he said.
"This is adequate for the existing administration and service buildings at Stennis but would never have been enough to supply the industrial park," Cordon said.
Sewage facilities included a prefabricated metal treatment plant which serviced only the vocational technical school, he stated.

"Other installations in the airpark were dependent on septic tanks but now all users will have sanitary sewage collection services available," Cordon said.
Cordon said in spite of bad weather which hampered progress of several of the utility projects initially he was pleased with the jobs.
Contract time on each of the projects except the water well exceeded the allocated time but claims due to

No objections voiced to 'no wake' proposal

BY DENA BISNETTE

Boats will now be required to travel slowly enough on some of the county's manmade canals and improved natural waterways to prevent wakes.
About 20 people attended a Monday public hearing to support "no wake" limitations proposed by the board of supervisors at the requests of civic associations representing several subdivisions.
No one appeared at the hearing to oppose the limits, which will be imposed in Shoreline Estates, Shoreline Park, Jourdan River Isles, Jourdan River Shores, Bayou Phillips and Bayou LaCroix.
Bureau of Marine Resources will be in charge of enforcement, although citizens can report the identification numbers of boats traveling fast enough to throw a high wake to other law enforcement agencies, such as the sheriff's department.
According to Board of Supervisors President A.A. Kellar, the limitations are expected to make the waterways safer for swimmers and small boats in addition to reducing erosion from wakes.
Kellar stated, however, that he is more in favor of waterway speed limits than "no wake" limitations because he feels wake regulations will be difficult to enforce.

Kellar pointed out that different types and sizes of boats can travel without wakes at varying speeds.

Suggestions offered for party hosts

Hosting parties can be fun, but, if alcoholic beverages are served, the risks of tragedies resulting from guests' drunk driving can be high, according to the Division of Highway Safety, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

"Don't make drinking the main focus of your party," advised Roy Thigpen, governor's representative for highway safety and director of Federal-State Programs' Department of Criminal Justice Planning. "Plan stimulating activities to avoid letting individuals cluster into groups of heavy or light drinkers."

Thigpen also suggested that hosts provide nutritious and appealing food when alcohol is served to slow the effects of alcohol, and, he said, "don't push drinks. Respect a person's decision not to drink, and provide equally attractive and accessible non-alcoholic drinks when alcohol is served."

He also advised hosts to carefully measure all drinks to enable drinkers to know exactly how much they are drinking.

"Avoid carbonated mixers in favor of drinks such as fruit juices," Thigpen said. "Carbonation speeds alcohol absorption."

He also advised hosts not to serve after dinner drinks. "Serve coffee, tea or other non-alcoholic beverages instead," Thigpen said. "Cut off drinks at least one hour before the party ends.

"When entertaining, assume responsibility for your guests," he said. "If someone drinks too much, provide transportation home or overnight accommodations. Friends don't let alcohol-impaired friends drive."

"Don't forget that, when alcohol is served, your obligations as a host go far beyond seeing that your guests have a good time," Thigpen said. "Take these obligations seriously, and don't let your party lead to tragedy."

Pan Am funds teacher survey

A grant awarded to two University of Southern Mississippi professors will fund a survey of some 400 state public school teachers concerning their knowledge of aerospace studies.

According to Dr. Bobby N. Irby, chairman of the USM Department of Science Education, a $6,800 grant from Pan American World Services will allow him — along with Dr. Donald R. Cotten, program development coordinator for the USM Office of Research and Sponsored Programs — to randomly select 400 Mississippi public school teachers from grades four through 12 to complete a questionnaire.

The questionnaire, Irby explained, is designed to establish some baseline data of teachers' knowledge of aerospace education. "If teachers' knowledge is found to be low," he added, "the next step would be to increase teachers' knowledge in order that they may dispense that knowledge to their students."

The sample, Irby estimated, should be representative of the teaching population in the state in determining the status of aerospace technology through cognitive knowledge of basic scientific concepts.

Subcommittees produce election reform bill

Rep. Tim Ford and Sen. Bill Harpole report that a comprehensive election reform bill would be introduced this week.

The bill is the product of the work of interim subcommittees appointed by Ford, chairman of the House Apportionment and Elections Committee, and Harpole, chairman of the Senate Elections Committee, to study the state's election laws.

"The bill will achieve a badly needed reorganization of our election laws," said Ford, "and we have added several features which will substantially improve our election procedures."

Secretary of State Dick Molpus endorsed election reform legislation prepared by legislative subcommittees after their study of election issues last Fall.

"As chief elections officer of the State," stated Molpus, "I am delighted that Rep. Ford and Sen. Harpole will introduce a comprehensive bill this session. They deserve a great deal of credit for their efforts so far and will need all our support in getting this package passed."

The subcommittees met concurrently in the fall following the completion of staff work on the status of Mississippi election laws under the Voting Rights Act.

The committees concentrated on present laws that were never submitted or precluded by the U.S. Justice Department under the Voting Rights Act, judicial decisions which had invalidated state election procedures and issues identified by the task force.

Election officials, representatives from Molpus' office and others interested in election matters provided testimony and resource material.

The legislative study undertaken this fall grew out of the efforts of an election law reform task force appointed in 1984 by Molpus.

This task force proposed a revised election code and suggested changes which were introduced in the 1985 legislative session.

The task force bill garnered significant support, but legislators agreed that the bill warranted additional study because of its size and complexity.

The result was the establishment by both houses of interim committees for the study of election laws.

"The election laws have become so confusing that people can not rely with certainty on what is printed in the Code," said Harpole. "It's time that we did something about it."

Included in the legislative package are proposals for extended polling hours, meaningful campaign disclosure, the mandatory use of automated voting devices, summary forms of constitutional amendments to be placed on ballots, a common qualification date for both party and independent candidates, modification in absentee ballot procedures to help the elderly and handicapped and a reduction in the number of pollworkers.

"My only interest is to see that our election process functions with administrative integrity and efficiency, while encouraging voter participation," said Molpus, "and our present election laws do not permit this."

"We need more uniformity, more accessibility and more integrity in our election procedures," said Rep. Ford. "I am optimistic that our comprehensive approach will prove successful this session."

Kindergarten space solutions, a wait until the last minute

The Mississippi Legislature passed the Education Reform Act in 1982 with a strong push from former Governor William Winter.

In that great act by the Mississippi Legislature, kindergarten would be mandatory in the Fall of 1986.

This was no great secret, as it was widely publicized by the media of the state.

We are now into January of 1986, and both the Bay St. Louis Separate Municipal School and Hancock County School systems are seeking space for kindergarten classes.

This appears to be rather late in the game to start looking for classroom space, when the need was known so far in advance.

We hope that it will not come down to our five-year-old students of both school districts having to start their education in trailers.

The Annual Bay High Invitational basketball tournament play begins this evening through Saturday night.

This is a popular annual event in Bay St. Louis and as always should have some good boys and girls basketball action.

Girls play starts at 4:45 p.m. today with Long Beach vs. Picayune, and St. Martin vs. Bay High's Tigerettes at 7:15 p.m.

Boys action starts at 6 p.m. tonight with St. Martin going against Bay High's Tigers, and the second boys game being Long Beach vs. Hancock North Central's Hawks.

In the girls divisions Pass Christian and Hancock North Central will not see action until Friday. In boys play, Picayune and Pass Christian won't see action until Friday night.

As the scheduling is set, both Bay High teams will see action tonight in addition to the Hancock boys, so the Tiger Dome on Blue Meadow Road should be filled with local supporters.

Friday's play begins at 4:45 p.m., with the championship for girls set for 7 p.m. Saturday and boys at 8:30 p.m.

Admission for each day is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Mardi Gras is fast approaching and we know there are many groups, families, schools, and businesses who get together and enter a float in the Krewe of Nereids parade.

The parade is scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 2 at 2 p.m. and all floats for the Krewe of Hancock which follows Nereids need to be registered in order to participate.

Interested parties may contact Mrs. Robert M. Richmond at 467-7033 for further information.

While on the subject of parades, the Krewe of Diamondhead's Land and Sea are scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 8, and persons interested in entering a float may contact Chris Arnos at 255-7297.

The Annual Pass Christian parade is set for Sunday, Feb. 9.

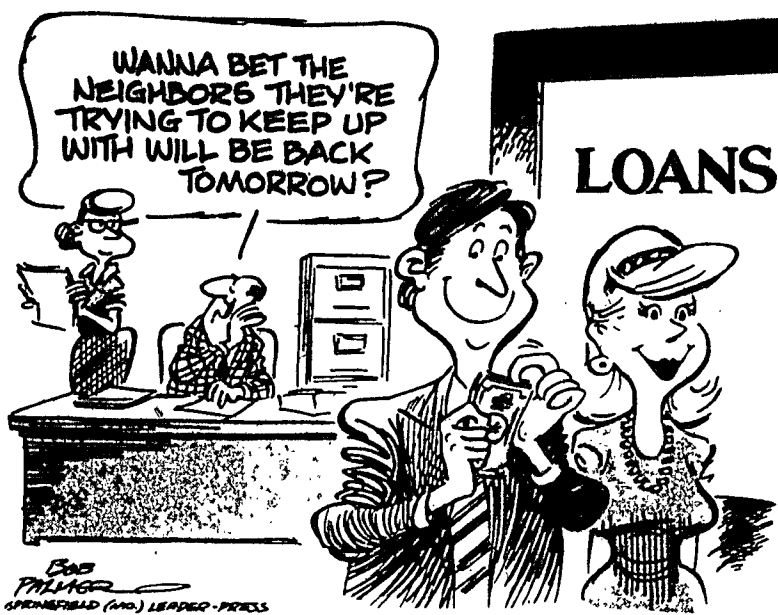

The Krewe of Triton is scheduled to roll on Mardi Gras Day, Feb. 11.

It is good news that Bay St. Louis has extended the City Hall's hours until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

We have, and are sure others have tried after 4 p.m. to transact business only to find the City Hall closed.

HOUSEKEEPING

A Weekly Summary Of Mississippi House Of Representatives

By REPRESENTATIVE CURTIS HOLSTON

JACKSON— The 1986 legislative session has gotten off to a brisk start with the Mississippi House of Representatives quickly passing two major funding bills for education and voting to let the people decide this fall on the issue of gubernatorial succession.

The action on the education appropriations came in the House on the opening day of the 90-day session. By the end of the week, both measures also had been approved by the state Senate and were ready to be sent to the governor.

One of the bills authorizes an expenditure of $599.3 million for general support of Mississippi's public schools in the fiscal year starting July 1.

The allocation was recommended by the Legislative Budget Committee and includes the $1,000 pay raise for school teachers approved as part of the 1985 teacher salary bill. There were no dissenting votes in the House.

In addition, the House voted 109-11 to allocate $44.8 million to continue carrying out various provisions of the 1982 Education Reform Act, including $40 million for public kindergartens across the state.

The allocation for public schools is traditionally the largest single appropriation bill handled by the Legislature and usually not passed until later in a session.

Several legislators said they saw no reason to delay action on either bill, arguing both should be approved early.

Some lawmakers cautioned the Legislature may be moving too fast, especially on the kindergarten bill, in view of the state's tight budget situation.

But a motion to send the kindergarten measure back to the House Appropriations Committee for further study was rejected.

Under the gubernatorial succession plan, Mississippi voters would decide in November whether the governor should have an opportunity to succeed himself in office. At present, the State Constitution prohibits a governor from seeking re-election when his first term ends.

The House-passed proposal specified no governor could be elected to more than two full terms. It also would clear the way, if approved by the people, for Gov. Bill Allain to run again in 1987 if he chooses to seek another term. It sailed through the House by a vote of 114-7.

Despite speedy passage of the education appropriations and succession amendment, the session began on a somber note with a discouraging report by budget analysts regarding state finances. Revenue collections for the state's general fund are running about $39 million below budget estimates for the current fiscal year, largely because of a shortfall in the corporate income tax, oil and gas severance taxes, and the recently imposed sales tax on private sales of automobiles.

Because of the continued slump in revenues, the Legislative Budget Committee and Fiscal Management Board decided at the end of the week to reduce their joint revenue estimate by $28.5 million for the coming year.

The Fiscal Management Board also ordered a second round of budget cuts, amounting to $25.5 million, for the current fiscal year.

Reductions of more than $47 million were ordered in November, making a total cut of nearly $73 million in recent months.

Fiscal specialists said the outlook for any dramatic improvement in months ahead is not good.

In fact, State Economist Ed Rank told a legislative briefing the situation may get even worse in light of a new federal law due to take effect this fall to prohibit collection of the sales tax on items purchased with food stamps.

Dear Sir:

I have recently reviewed the plans for our new hospital and I am convinced that we will have a facility that the whole county will be proud of. I look forward to this addition as well as our new jail.

In reference to a recent news media story concerning the future use of the old Hancock General Hospital, I feel that the facility offers an excellent opportunity to provide our area with a much needed extended care center for the aged and a possible drug and alcohol treatment center.

Let's keep our county moving forward.

JACKSON— Agriculture Commissioner Jim Buck Ross' ill-fated journey into socialism via the state-owned agricultural lime business may be brought to a halt by state lawmakers in the current session of the Legislature.

Perhaps unknown to most Mississippians is that the state which prides itself as a champion of free enterprise has engaged in the business of selling lime to farmers in competition with private industry since 1942.

It started as a wartime expedient by the Legislature to make lime available to Mississippi farmers because private lime producers were engaged in the war effort. But from its modest beginning, the state-owned lime business since Ross became Agriculture Commissioner in 1968 has gone full blast in competition with private producers.

The first state lime plant was a small operation near West Point, and in 1952, the Legislature authorized a second one in Neshoba County.

That same year, ironically, the Legislature had adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to the United States Constitution to get the federal government out of all services which could be handled by private enterprise.

Jim Buck built a third lime plant in 1976 at Waynesboro, using $1.1 million in federal revenue sharing money to do it.

At that time, there was a privately owned lime plant in Waynesboro which was selling lime at $4 per ton. When Ross' state owned plant started selling lime at $1.75, in three weeks the commercial producer was put out of business.

In all, a half dozen or so commercial operators in the state have been run out of business in the last eight years.

But the kicker is that Jim Buck's Division of Lime in the Department of Agriculture has sustained $827,328 in losses since 1979, which have been passed on to the taxpayers.

Audited reports for the fiscal years 1979 through 1984 have shown a total loss of $692,037 by the state-owned lime operation, and the 1985 fiscal year report by the State Department of Agriculture shows an additional loss of $135,000.

Ross and the Ag Department were sued in federal court four years ago by one private operator, LimeCo, located in West Point, for violating federal anti-trust laws by underselling commercial competitors to drive them out of business.

Last fall, LimeCo lost the case in U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals on grounds that the Sherman Anti-Trust law was not applicable to an enterprise undertaken by a state. The court, however, did not go into the merits of the case to unfair competition.

In the process of the case, however, some interesting facts were developed. Among them was the admission by Ross that he covered the losses in the lime division by using "loans" from other funds under his control. Apparently the loans were covered over by a constant switching of funds each year since 1981.

Another admission by Ross during the trial was that he had ignored a legislative mandate several years back to locate warehouses in the Delta so that the lime, all of which is produced in the Eastern side of the state, could be more readily available to Delta farmers.

"That was just cooked up by some Delta legislators," Ross had testified in the hearing on the LimeCo case.

Significantly, Ross had hired outside attorneys other than the Attorney General to represent him in the suit, and assessed the $82,000 legal costs to the support fund of the Department of Agriculture, rather than the Division of Lime.

The original legislative act permitting the Agriculture Department to produce agricultural lime for sale to farmers had required it to be sold at cost. It is obvious from the yearly losses since 1979 that Ross was trying to justify keeping the lime plants by selling even below cost.

In the fall of 1984, after sustaining a $210,000 loss the previous year, Ross sent out a notice he was having to raise the price of lime to $8 per ton, which would have put it only $2 or $3 below the private industry price. When some farmers beefed, Ross backed off and put the price back to $7 a ton.

Several bills are slated to be introduced next week in the current legislative session proposing that the three state lime plants be sold to private companies over a three-year period, or to simply repeal the old law which permitted the state to go into the business.

In any case, another of Jim Buck's sacred cows is due to be given some close legislative attention this time, something that hasn't happened before.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH MONTH

Gov. Bill Allain has proclaimed January as Maternal and Child Health Month in Mississippi.

The action is in conjunction with a national celebration to commemorate the 50th anniversary of enactment of Title V of the Social Security Act for Maternal and Child Health and Crippled Children's Programs.

Allain said that "the infant mortality rate in Mississippi has declined, but it continues to remain the third highest in the nation. Health professionals and citizens of Mississippi have as a priority the continued decrease in infant mortality rates."

There were 14.4 deaths for every 1,000 live births in 1984, according to the Mississippi Department of Health.

"Approximately three times the number of babies who die live with permanently handicapping conditions, and much of this could be prevented with proper prenatal care," said Nellie Hutchison, director of the Commission for Children and Youth, Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs. "Beyond the human suffering, it costs the state an estimated $700,000 to provide a lifetime of care for one severely handicapped child. The average cost in Mississippi for a baby's stay in intensive care is $24,000. From both humanitarian and economic points of view, prenatal care is a wise investment."

Mississippi's new Medicaid Optional Categorically Needy component, which became effective last July 1 and provides access to Medicaid for married women who are poor and pregnant and for their children, is a step to alleviate the problem. Prior to this component, women were required to be unmarried and children to be in single-parent families to receive Medicaid assistance under the Aid to Dependent Children program.

The Governor's Service Line serves as a contact for information on the Medicaid Optional Categorically Needy component and other maternal and child health subjects. Last year, the Service Line handled 3,272 information requests on maternal and child health care.

Persons with questions on this or any other subject related to state government and services may contact the Service Line at 354-4540 or 354-4542 in the Jackson area or the toll-free number, 1-800-222-7622.

Supervisors deny request for right-of-way

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has denied a request for a right-of-way for a private road in Diamondhead because some of the property involved may belong to the state.

After a six-hour hearing, Attorney Gerald Gex, substituting for Board Attorney Walter Gex III, recommended that Russell Mitchell's request for a road right-of-way be denied.

In announcing the board's decision to rule as Gex recommended, Board President A.A. Kellar said the ruling was based on a surveyor's map submitted as evidence.

He stated that there were differences in the easternmost property line drawn by Mitchell's 12.6 acre parcel and the property line for the previous owners.

Part of the land in question, including the disputed section, was once sixteenth section lieu land for the Clarke County School District.

If Mitchell does not own the entire lot, part of the right-of-way requested would cross state property.

Kellar said the board is allowed under statute to rule on right-of-way matters within the county, but its jurisdiction does not extend to state property.

The opponents of the right-of-way, which if allowed would have extended from a private road in Devil's Elbow Subdivision controlled by the Devil's Elbow Property Owners Association, then across land owned by Purcell Property, have filed a chancery court action to determine ownership, according to attorney Floyd Logan.

Logan, along with attorney John Scaffide Jr., appeared at the hearing to represent the Diamondhead Property Owners Association, which also opposes the proposed road.

Purcell was represented by Carl Joff and William McDonough. Mitchell, called as a witness by his attorney, C. Randall Jones, stated that his property is presently accessible only by boat.

He said his only planned use of the property is for residences for himself and his two brothers, who are co-owners, and said the road would provide them access to the nearest public road.

The road behind Devil's Elbow subdivision is a private road, as are most of the roads in Diamondhead.

The proposed right-of-way would extend across about 130 feet of Purcell Property and Mitchell stated he would pay for the construction of the road and any property damages caused by the construction.

Harry T. Smith, a civil engineer who surveyed Mitchell's property, said the proposed road would have to cross one 30-foot ditch and a bridge would be required.

Opponents of the road, according to Logan, wanted the right-of-way denied partially because the ownership of the property is still in litigation and partially because they feel Mitchell has no specific plans for the land.

The road could lead to some public traffic rather than private traffic only because there are no restrictions on land use, Logan stated.

Kellar commented at the end of the hearing that Mitchell's request resulted in the most complex right-of-way hearing before the board in his more than 20 years in office.

MPC donation to help with electric bills

Mississippi Power Company is donating $25,000 to the American Red Cross to provide energy assistance for elderly customers who are incapable of caring for themselves and are on fixed incomes.

"During the winter customers purchase more electricity to keep warm and this may make it difficult for some to pay their electric bill," Joe Corley, Mississippi Power Company's manager of Consumer Affairs said. "We want to help these customers avoid having their electricity disconnected for nonpayment."

The money will be available to qualifying Mississippi Power Company customers after the first of the year through American Red Cross offices in southeast Mississippi.

"This money will be for our customers who are facing extreme hardships and have no other means of assistance," Corley said.

For the last two years Mississippi Power Company has made the $25,000 donation. In 1984 the money provided direct financial assistance to more than 375 families and in 1985 328 families received help.

The American Red Cross is responsible for taking applications, determining who qualifies and how much assistance is granted. Qualifying customers may receive a maximum donation of $100.

Mississippi Power Company also has other programs to help qualifying customers. The utility will delay the due date on a customer's bill to coincide with when he receives his government assistance check, help the customer level out his bill over the year or notify a friend or neighbor if a bill becomes overdue.

The utility's customer service representatives and local managers will also sit down with customers and work out payment plans to help them avoid having their electricity cut off. And, the utility has compiled a manual to help direct customers to other government and charity programs that offer financial aid.

"The last thing we want to do this winter is cut off someone's electricity for nonpayment," Corley said. "We care about our customers and want to help them. That's why we have all of these programs - to make it easier for them to do business with us."

Mississippi Power Company is a member of the Southern electric system and serves more than 171,000 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Krewe of Real People doubloon proclaims 'We Are The World'

By EDGAR H. PEREZ

Theme of the sixth annual ball and parade of the Bay St. Louis carnival organization Krewe of Real People will be 'We Are The World.'

Special doubloons commemorating this year's theme which on the reverse depict a map of the world with Bay St. Louis appropriately marked have been designed for the krewe.

Also included with the map are the theme and this year's date.

On the obverse, the doubloon depicts an ornate carnival mask along with name of the krewe and founding date, 1981.

Bay St. Louis Councilman Charles E. Johnson, krewe member, said brass version of the souvenir will be distributed in limited quantities and silver-colored aluminum castings will be thrown from floats during the organization's annual Mardi Gras Day parade Tuesday, Feb. 11.

KORP royalty will be revealed at the group's annual Carnival Ball Saturday, Jan. 25 at Gulfside Assembly Center in Waveland.

Festivities are scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m. with presentation of the Junior Court.

Tickets to the ball may be purchased from Herta Smith, ticket chairman, by calling 467-0470, or Charles E. Johnson, krewe member, at 467-8482.

King and queen and members of the KORP court are selected on the basis of results of fund raising activities throughout the year, according to Lonnie Bradley of Bay St. Louis, krewe president.

Formal attire is optional, Bradley noted.

Grand marshal of this year's parade will be Ernest Dorsey, Bay St. Louis native stationed in New Orleans with the U. S. Navy.

The grand marshal title is bestowed each year by the krewe on a member selected by the krewe in honor of special services rendered to the organization.

Dorsey is one of the founders of KORP.

The parade is scheduled to roll Mardi Gras Day at 11:30 p.m. from the formation area at Commagere Park on Bookter and St. Francis Streets.

The parade will move out to the south on Bookter to Necaise, east on Necaise to Main, south on Main to Second, west on Second to City Hall where the king and queen will be toasted by city officials.

The parade then will proceed north on Union to Third Street, west on Third to Sycamore, north on Sycamore to Old Spanish Trail, east on OST and back to Commagere Park to disband.

Three youths arrested in vandalism

By DENA BISNETTE

Three juveniles have been arrested in connection with vandalism to a home in the Garden Isles subdivision.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the juveniles, two 14-year-old males and a 12-year-old male, were arrested Monday afternoon and charged with vandalism and malicious mischief. The three were turned over to the County Youth Court.

Peterson said monetary estimates of the damage done to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Ramos have not been completed, but termed the damage "extensive."

The three youths allegedly shot out windows, broke glass, turned over a refrigerator and scattered food products inside and around the dwelling and emptied cans of oil on the carpets at about 2 a.m. Sunday while the residents were out of town.

The incident is being investigated by Delbert Seay and Glen Strong of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Zoning approved

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission approved a zoning change request by Ronald Artigues Tuesday.

In the first phase of a project called the Woods Estates, Artigues requested the change that will enable him to create a mini-subdivision along Beyer Drive.

The zoning change will allow for the reduction of the road frontage of a lot as well as the overall square footage of lot sizes.

Artigues told the commission he believed the project would be an asset to the community and that covenants would be filed to maintain the quality of the neighborhood throughout development.

The change was unanimously approved.

presents "On the Shoulders of Giants," detailing Charles Darwin's revolutionary legacy, and a new series, "Planet Earth," begins at 9.

When Charles Darwin's revolutionary work "On the Origin of the Species" was published in 1859, it opened new areas of study for new generations of scientists. One such young scientist, paleontologist David Steadman, is the focus of "Smithsonian World."

Steadman is a scientific sleuth. His original and sometimes dangerous research has helped trace the evolution of animal life on two remote island groups, and it has helped to clarify some of Darwin's evidence, which for years had been mislabeled and misinterpreted.

Legislative Report through Jan. 9

Editor's note: This is the first of a regular series of reports that will recap the week's action in the state legislature, including the key votes of the senators and representatives in The Sea Coast Echo circulation area. It's provided as a service for you, our readers, to let you know how your legislators are voting.

By ROSA LEE H. JONES
State legislators started out of the blocks on their first week back at the capitol, funding both a teacher pay raise and kindergarten and starting action on gubernatorial succession and abolition of blue laws.

The race started on Tuesday's opening day in the House, where representatives unanimously approved a $600 million Minimum Foundation Program that included a $1,000 teacher pay raise. Public kindergartens will receive nearly $40 million of another $44.8 million bill approved by the House the same day.

The Senate showed Wednesday that the House didn't have a monopoly on speed when it also gave a unanimous OK to the teacher pay hike and approved a kindergarten bill. The minor differences in the House and Senate versions of the kindergarten bill were ironed out Thursday and the two education bills were sent to Gov. Bill Allain for his signature.

More than 44,000 five-year-olds will be eligible to participate in kindergarten this fall, State Department of Education officials say. The establishment of kindergartens is part of the landmark 1982 Education Reform Act. Mississippi is the only state without a statewide system of kindergartens.

Swift was also the byword in the House again on Wednesday, as representatives took only four minutes to approve a constitutional amendment that would end the ban on governors serving consecutive terms.

If the Senate also gives it a two-thirds approval, succession will be put on the November ballot along with the congressional races. A succession bill passed the Senate in 1978.

If both the Senate and the voters like the idea, in 1987 Allain could become the first Mississippi governor in modern times to run for re-election.

On Thursday, the Senate decided to abolish blue laws, a vote that agrees with a House action of last year.

In 1985, the House voted to wipe out the laws that prohibit sales of all but 82 items on Sunday, but couldn't reach a compromise with the Senate, which wanted to allow cities and counties to either abolish blue laws or write their own. Legislative observers believe that the Senate's action paves the way for easy passage in the House.

Sen. Glen Deweese of Meridian was elected Senate president pro tempore Tuesday, replacing the former pro tempore, Tommy Brooks of Carthage, who was convicted of extortion.

The fast action for education has used up more than 35 percent of the state's general fund, causing some legislators to predict that Mississippians could be facing their fifth tax increase in five years.

Other lawmakers say that hefty cuts in programs, even slashing appropriations for usually protected programs like the University of Mississippi Dental School or the Mississippi State University School of Veterinary Medicine, may be in order.

Legislators will have to come up with the money from somewhere; revenues from state taxes have plummeted $39 million below original projections this year.

The funding crunch means that money questions will be at the forefront of every debate until the legislature adjourns in April.

Council to rule Tuesday

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis City Council is expected to rule Tuesday at their next meeting on two requests for zoning changes.

Hearing on the requests were Monday following protests filed at city hall on the decisions of the Planning and Zoning Commission.

In the hearing on a request by Jerry Heitzman for a change of multi-family residential to single-family residential, the protestor failed to appear.

Heitzmann told the council his request for the zoning change which includes his own property on Third Street and a parcel of adjoining property was to protect the character of the neighborhood which is primarily single-family dwellings.

In contrast to the Heitzman hearing, several protestors appeared to voice their objections to a zoning change request by Paul Vegas for property in the Turner and Bismark streets area.

The change from residential to commercial would seriously depreciate the value of homeowners property in the area, protesters claimed.

Vegas stated that the residential zoning of the property was an error that he had believed to be corrected before recent investigations.

One arrested on sex charge

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has arrested a 29-year-old Bay St. Louis man on two counts of sexual battery.

The man had allegedly conducted sexual activities with his 12-year-old daughter, according to Investigator Delbert Seay.

The suspect was released on $10,000 bond following the Friday arrest and is awaiting a hearing, Sheriff Ronald Peterson said.

Authorities are withholding the name of the suspect to protect the victim.

The incident is being investigated by Glen Strong and Gloria Tarravouille.

"Other than the time factor everything when smooth and we are pleased with the final products, he said.

IMPROVEMENTS

The new water well with a capacity of 650 gallons per minute has been in operation since Sept. 1985. The $38,240 project was started in April 1985 with Layne-Central Co. of Jackson as contractor.

Cordon said the well is connected to the water distribution system of the airpark and that the motor is controlled by the water level in the elevated storage tank.

"This new well will work in conjunction with the elevated water tank to maintain water pressure throughout the park development, Cordon said.

The 142 feet high water tank with a capacity for 250,000 gallons was ready for use last October.

Caldwell Tank, Inc was the low bidder for the job with a bid of $358,800. The final cost for the job which was completed in November 1985 was $355,254 due to a decrease in the elevation of the tank.

Also completed in November was the sewage collection and treatment facility. Construction began in January 1984 for this $214,291 project.

The plant can treat 50,000 gallons per day, which is the equivalent of a city with a population of 500.

The collection part of the project includes approximately one mile eight, ten or 12 inch diameter pipes, manholes, service connections and a pumping station.

Southland Enterprises, Inc. of Gulfport was the contractor for the sewage project as well as the drainage project.

This $214,820 project included the replacement of concrete culverts and reshaping and concrete lining of the major drainage canal in the airpark. Also included was a new culvert crossing on the Texas Flat Road on the north side of the field.

Also at the commission meeting Monday, officers for the upcoming year were elected. Wholeheartedly

Preliminary report obtained on wastewater project study

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District has obtained a preliminary report on a cost-saving engineering study of Segment III of a proposed linkage of the Bay St. Louis and Waveland sewage systems.

The study is designed to provide the district with suggestions for changes that could save money on the project.

Segment III consists of improvements at Waveland's existing wastewater treatment plant that will enable the plant to handle the increased demand and provide a higher degree of treatment when the two systems are linked.

The study was provided by Metcalf and Eddy, a Jacksonville, Fla., firm, according to District Administrator Ethel Schott who traveled to Jacksonville Friday for a presentation on the preliminary results.

The results will be evaluated by the firm under contract to the district for the design engineering on the project, Reynolds, Smith and Hills, also of Jacksonville.

Schott said the district will then prepare a report responding to the recommendations and its board will vote on which ones to implement.

The reports will also be submitted to the State Bureau of Pollution Control, which will furnish the district with an opinion if one is requested.

Schott said details of the recommendations will be provided on the final report from the study, which is expected to be complete by Jan. 24.

Also within the next two weeks, representatives of the district, Bureau of Pollution Control and the firms involved in the study will attend a workshop on the recommendations, which is expected to be held in Jackson but has not yet been scheduled.

Schott declined to discuss the preliminary report, other than to say that a number of the recommended changes are minor items such as changing the thickness of concrete, while other would require major redesigning.

She also said a few of the preliminary recommendations concern items the district has already considered and rejected as unfeasible or uneconomical.

According to Schott, none of the changes are presently required by Bureau of Pollution Control or the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, giving the district the option of using some, all or none of them.

Further discussion of the value engineering report is expected at the board's Feb. 5 meeting.

All events will be in the Bay High Tigerdome on Blue Meadow Road. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults each night.

The River bids farewell to Dobie Holden

POPLARVILLE - They bid farewell to the "master motivator" here Monday afternoon.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. at Winstead Funeral Chapel for Pearl River College's legendary football coach T. D. "Dobie" Holden.

Holden died Sunday, Jan. 12, 1986, at the Forrest General Hospital in Hattiesburg.

At age 80, it had been nearly 20 years since his last team took the field. For many attending the service it had been 25, 30, even 35 years since they played "the game" for him.

Yet, the memories of those days of boys becoming men, those days of gridiron glory, appeared as vivid today as if it was only yesterday.

Yesterday - when Dobie and his Pearl River Wildcats were playing havoc with the rest of the junior college powers in Mississippi.

From 1948 to 1966 the Pearl River Wildcats under Coach Holden won 140 games, lost 43, tied 7 and were state champions seven times. His 1961 team was undefeated and ranked number one in the nation.

He led his "Cats" to 17 straight wins (1949-1965) over arch-rivals Perk. His teams won four of five bowl games. Dobie Holden teams were innovative and devastating.

His teams won and they won big. Holden's niche in the history of football in the South and in Mississippi is firmly secure.

His playing years at Picayune and LSU came at the dawn of football's modern era, and his coaching years spanned an era when football grew into the national sport.

During 44 years of football, Holden became known as an innovator and a coach far ahead of his time.

He was one of the first to recognize the potential of the forward pass, even as early as his high school days, and his experimentation with the pro-set at Pearl River Junior College in the 1950s came way before that formation became standard procedure for college and pro teams.

Holden attributed his innovations to nothing more than practicality and, at one point, boredom - and he added impatience with what he termed his contemporaries conservative approach to football.

For instance, although it wasn't the only one, one reason he experimented with the pro-set (where backs and sometimes ends are split wide for receiving) was his difficulty in finding and recruiting good tight ends.

Although Holden attributed his innovations to boredom and impatience with what was once primarily a running game, others say it was manifestations of a football genius at work.

Holden took football naturally when Picayune fielded its first team in 1922. He was born July 5, 1905. His father, Gideon E. Holden, and mother, the former Lela Mitchell, ran a meat market in Picayune.

It was football that caught the competitive eye of Holden when he heard about a new game and team. He returned to school, which he had recently quit, solely to play football. In one of the many feature stories written about Coach Holden, he said, "I had a strong activity drive and liked competition. Football kept a lot of young men in school then."

From the first time he put on a suit, there was never a doubt what he would do. He never thought of doing anything else.

His mother and father were neutral. They didn't encourage their 6-foot, 170-pound son to either play or not to play.

It took Picayune about three years to get the game down pat, and in 1925 they fielded a team that won the state championship. Holden played fullback on that team which recorded a 9-0 record.

It was Picayune coach Gus Jackson who helped Holden get a scholarship to LSU. There Holden played fullback but was later changed to blocking back. He was varsity co-captain at LSU and scored the only touchdown in the Tigers' 6-0 win over Ole Miss in 1930.

After graduation, Holden remained a year at LSU as a freshman coach, coached at Hattiesburg a year, and then accepted a job as head coach at Picayune.

From 1933 to 1943, Holden brought the glory days back to Picayune. One time his Picayune teams won 37 straight games. His Picayune record was 73-19-7.

Along about 1943, Holden resigned at Picayune and took a job with a shipbuilding firm in Slidell, La. He didn't know whether he would ever coach again.

However, after a job injury, he called the superintendent at Pascagoula, Tom Wells, who'd told Holden that if he ever quit at Picayune, give him a call.

Holden met Wells in Gulfport and was immediately hired. Wells told Pascagoula's coach that he could stay on as an assistant under Holden or move on.

Holden had another successful tenure at Pascagoula. One time the sportswriters picked him to finish 18th in the then 19-team Big Eight Conference. The Panthers finished first.

One of the reasons for that Big Eight championship was a new defense Holden devised called the "Look at the Stars" defense. When the offense would set up, Holden's defensive captain would "just sort of look up at the stars and call one of the four defensive sets."

"It was very confusing for the offense," said Holden.

When he arrived at Pearl River College he found a program in disarray. Most of the equipment was either missing or in such a state of disrepair that it couldn't be used.

And the team was made up mostly of a bunch of veterans who did pretty much as they pleased. Holden immediately set about instilling some discipline and organization into the program.

The results were phenomenal.

The legend was on its way to being made. It acquired full fruition at Pearl River, though.

His teams there won or shared the state championship seven times, and once in 1961 won the national title. From 1959 to 1963 the Wildcats' won-loss record was 43-5-2. Holden's lifetime record is 240-74-15.

He set such a tradition at Pearl River that even today, years after his retirement, Pearl River's traditional place in Mississippi junior college football is still alive and affecting even current coaches.

Here's a sampling of Coach Holden's football philosophy. On conservative football: "You know, you can define conservative as anybody who doesn't believe in doing something the first time. Another definition of conservative is somebody who's got something to conserve. If you don't, you might as well go for broke."

On psychology and football (Holden majored in psychology and later taught it): "We weren't giving anybody a scholarship to eat. We're all expandable. We could get along without them and they could get along without me, too. So if you don't want to do right, get out. There's nothing better than a slight feeling of inferiority to make you get up and go. It's essential. I've always had a slight feeling of inferiority. Everybody has it at times."

On common sense: "One thing you don't go by is common sense. I wish somebody would define it for me. It's the unpredictable, the surprise that wins football games."

On new ideas: "I'd go anywhere for an idea. You've heard the definition of research haven't you? If you steal from one person, that's plagiarism. If you steal from two people, that's comparative analysis. If you steal from three or more people, that's research."

On working with young people: "If you work with people who are the same age, they all die off. But if you work with young people, you end up with lots of friends."

And there are the thousands of stories that former football players who played under Holden repeat endlessly for their grandchildren and when they meet up with old friends.

Billy Wayne Miller of Moss Point recalls that after dropping numerous passes at practice, Holden bellowed out for Miller to "come here." "Hold up your hands," Holden told him. Miller raised his hands over his head. "No wonder you can't catch the ball," Holden yelled. "Your hands are on backwards." Today, Miller is head coach at Moss Point where he has won several state championship titles.

Picayune High School coach Calvin Triplett, who has also won more than 200 ballgames as a coach said he was a disciple of Coach Holden. "Coach Holden was tough but he was fair," Triplett said. "I learned more from him than anyone else."

Long time Bogalusa High head coach Lewis Murray said, "Dobie had a nose for talent. He could tell if a player had talent by watching that player jog from one side of the field to the other. He was a master at judging talent and getting the most out of that talent."

Dr. Thomas J. Malone, president of Milliken and Company, in a 1985 address to the Harvard University Graduate School of business Administration quoted Coach Holden. "I never met a truly successful individual who did not feel and act a little bit inferior from time to time."

"He taught me to believe that I had to work a little harder to excel and to outperform my peers," Malone said.

Coach Holden is a member of the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame. And his philosophy was simple. He didn't coach burns. A good football player is never a quitter and we must take the bitter with the sweet.

Pirates, with 11 wins, 3 losses, favored in Bay High Tourney

Pass High trailing by 18 points at halftime, outscored Long Beach 28 to 5 in the third quarter and went on to take a 67-65 overtime decision over rival Long Beach on Jan. 6.

With the win the Pirates improved the season record to 10-3.

Nine players scored for the Pirates as scoring ace Joel Hatcher led the way with 28 points.

Outstanding play by reserves Tyrone Moffett, Randall Henderson and Simuel Hall contributed to the victory.

Corey Lyons led Long Beach with 26 points. Behind a 34 point effort by Joel Hatcher Jan. 7, the Pirates ran their record to 11-3 with a 64-59 win over Bay St. Louis in Bay St. Louis.

J. W. Dedeaux dished out 12 assists and Charlie Barnes pulled down 14 rebounds as the Pirates continued their winning streak over Bay High.

Pass High will see action again Friday when they face the winner of the Bay High-St. Martin game in the Bay High Tournament.

News Brief

SEASON UPDATES

Overall, the 1985-86 hunting season appears to be going well, according to reports received by the state Department of Wildlife Conservation in Jackson.

The weather has cooperated with hunters in most areas, and hunters are reporting numbers of deer in some areas.

January will, however, be the end of several hunting seasons this year.

The duck season concluded Monday, Jan. 13, as did the coot season and the shooting period statewide for Canada geese.

The squirrel season ended Wednesday, Jan. 15, and the last day of the deer season is Wednesday, Jan. 22.

The Canada geese season within the Sardis Reservoir zone ends Jan. 31.

Pass Christian Girls take 7-3 record into Bay High Tourney

The Lady Pirates opened the new year with a 42-34 win over Long Beach at home Monday, Jan. 6.

The team had been off over the holidays for 21 days but took a 22-19 halftime lead behind Kim Joseph's 12 points.

The Pirates increased their lead to 32-23 at the end of the third quarter with Angel Moran's scoring of 6 points in the period.

Joseph led the team in scoring with 16 points and Moran added 11. In rebounding, Joseph led the team with 10 and Ouida Buchanan grabbed 5. Hope Bonney dished out 3 assists.

The Lady Pirates ran their season record to 7-3 Tuesday night and won their second game in a row with a 51-39 victory over Bay St. Louis.

The first quarter saw the Pirates take a 15-12 lead.

But their man-to-man defense in the second quarter forced Bay High into numerous turnovers, and the Pirates took a 30-18 halftime lead.

Ouida Buchanan led the Pirates in increasing their lead to 44-25 in the third quarter, sealing the victory.

Buchanan led in balanced attack with 15 points, Kim Joseph added 14 points, and Hope Bonney added 12 points.

Bonney led the team with 4 assists and Angel Moran added 3.

In rebounding, Buchanan collected 10 and Kim Joseph grabbed 9.

On Friday, Jan. 17, the Lady Pirates take on the winner of the Long Beach-Picayune contest in the second round of the Bay High Tournament at 4:45 p.m.

News Brief

DEADLINE NEARS ON STAMP CONTEST

JACKSON—Mississippi artists are reminded that it's only about another month until the deadline for getting in entries into this year's state waterfowl stamp art contest.

Artists must have their entry in to the Department of Wildlife Conservation in Jackson by 5 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14.

For more information about contest rules, write Waterfowl Stamp Contest, P. O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

Rockachaw Shane Harris searches for an open teammate in recent junior varsity action against Sidel's Pope John Paul High

New funds expected for nongame wildlife

Beginning within the next few weeks, Mississippians will be introduced to the newest way to contribute to conserving wildlife.

Billboards, magazines, newspapers, and other media will be used by the Department of Wildlife Conservation to tell taxpayers how they can help wildlife, especially nongame animals.

Already Mississippi state income tax forms have been mailed to state taxpayers. On the cover of this year's tax form package are instructions about the new program. It's really very simple.

The income tax checkoff is nothing more than an easy way to let those persons who receive an income tax refund donate a portion of it to nongame wildlife conservation—if they choose to do so.

On the front of your state tax return, line 28 permits you to donate all or any portion of your tax refund (at least $1 or more) to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund. Just indicate how much you want to donate. That's all there is to it.

During the last session of the Legislature, Mississippi became the 33rd state to add the checkoff to its state income tax form.

According to the Department of Wildlife Conservation, monies received from the checkoff will be used solely for nongame and nonconsumptive wildlife purposes.

This could include such things as protecting a unique tract of land, valued because it supports a rare type of plant. Or it might mean protecting land because it is the home of an endangered or threatened bird or fish.

Commission restricts live bait shrimping

The Mississippi Commission on Wildlife Conservation has ordered all areas north of the L & N Railroad Bridges in each of the three coastal counties closed to live-bait shrimping effective sunset on Friday, Jan. 24, according to Richard L. Leard, Bureau of Marine Resources director.

In addition, the commission has ordered that effective sunset, Friday, Jan. 17 the St. Joseph's Point oyster reef in Hancock County will be closed to oystering activities.

NOTICE

TO CEILING FAN CUSTOMERS

SAFF HOMER

Notice is given to our ceiling fan customers who have purchased a "Key Largo" ceiling fan from us, that certain of such fans may have a defective hanging bracket. If you are a purchaser of or are in possession of a "Key Largo" fan, you are urged to take the fan down and to contact the store manager in your area who will supply you with a new bracket for your fan at no cost to you. A Key Largo Fan can be identified by the brass ball pull chain that has "Key Largo Fan" stamped on it. If you purchased a fan from us and are not sure if it is a "Key Largo" contact our nearest store. (Please remember BEFORE attempting to disconnect the fan from the mounting bracket, make sure the ELECTRICAL POWER IS SHUT OFF AT THE MAIN BREAKER BOX.)

Youth to repeat benefit 30-mile marathon attempt

BILLY HOLDER

By EDGAR H. PEREZ
Nine-year-old Billy Holder, who suffered heart and lung problems due to birth defects, will stage his 'Second Annual Bay-To-Bay Run' Saturday, Feb. 15.

Holder, son of Susan Jacques and John Masters, both of North Gulfport, staged the first such event—a 30.1 mile marathon—in 1985 to raise funds for the national March of Dimes.

Holder raised some $600 for the organization through donations and per-mile pledges in connection with the event.

This year's run will start at 8 a.m. at Hancock Bank in Bay St. Louis and Holder expects to complete the 30 mile jaunt between the Bay of St. Louis and Biloxi Bay in about 4.5 hours.

Finish line is Marine Life Education Center on Point Cadet in Biloxi. Holder began the fund-raising run last year in an effort to repay the March of Dimes for assistance given to his family to help finance medical expenses involved in the correction of his birth defects, primarily a diaphragmatic hernia.

Persons wishing to make a per-mile pledge on how much of the run Holder will complete or a donation may send checks to the Billy Holder Bay-To-Bay Run for March of Dimes account, Hancock Bank. Account number is 3170-149.

Marine laboratories organize

Directors and other representatives of 12 marine laboratories in the southeastern United States met recently at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs to organize the Southern Association of Marine Laboratories (SAML).

"This organization will provide a forum for the resolution of problems faced by non-profit marine laboratories in our region, and will promote the importance of research and education conducted at these facilities to our economy and society," said GCRL director Dr. Harold D. Howse, who issued an invitation to interested parties last fall to participate in the organizational session.

SAML membership will be open to non-profit shore-based facilities directly accessing the marine environment in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and the Caribbean.

A steering committee was selected to prepare articles of incorporation and bylaws, provide a slate of nominees for SAML officers, draft a budget and write a formal membership invitation to all marine laboratories in the designated area. In addition, the committee will design a format for the accumulation and collation of data from member institutions for publication of a resources brochure.

GCRL will host the next SAML meeting April 24-25.

Teaching Mississippi history in the public schools threatened

(The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association).

By David Sansing
Department of History
University of Mississippi

Under a provision of the Mississippi Code of 1892 public school students were required to take a course in the state's history.

This requirement prompted the publication of several histories of Mississippi which would be suitable as textbooks in the public schools.

One of the most popular of those early textbooks was co-authored by former Governor Robert Lowry and William McCardle, the embattled editor of the 'Vicksburg Herald' who was arrested for his abusive editorials against federal officials during the early stages of Reconstruction.

Another of the early textbooks was authored by Mary Duval of Blue Mountain College. Both of those histories were highly interpretive, but that did not detract from their appeal.

On the contrary, the textbooks were popular because they presented a favorable interpretation of slavery, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and federal-state relations.

They also "preserved on the living pages of history...that glorious era...of Mississippi...[that] can never come again."

The lingering influence of those early interpretations is evident in later histories even those done by professionally trained historians and educators.

In the first four decades of the twentieth century two professors of history, Franklin L. Riley and Charles Sydnor, and four college presidents, John Fant of MSCW, Bill G. Lowrey of Blue Mountain, A.A. Kincannon who was president of both MSCW and Ole Miss, and Claude Bennett of Southern Mississippi wrote Mississippi history textbooks which were used in the state's public schools.

All of those textbooks presented the standard and accepted interpretation of Mississippi's "glorious past."

After World War II a new generation of Mississippi historians published a new generation of textbooks. Richard and Nannie Pitts McLeMore, Pearl Vivian Guyton, and John K. Bettersworth published Mississippi history textbooks in the 1950s.

But those textbooks were also influenced by the "glorious past" tradition and presented the standard and accepted interpretation of Mississippi history.

In the wake of the civil rights movement and the unification of the dual school system in 1970, teaching Mississippi history became an increasingly difficult and delicate task.

As teachers were adjusting to the demand for a "new history" of Mississippi they were handicapped by the fact that there was only one textbook in print.

The only available text in the early 1970s was John K. Bettersworth's book which had been originally published in 1959.

Its later editions did not fully reflect the enormous changes that had occurred over the last 11 years.

In an effort to provide a Mississippi history textbook which did accurately measure those changes Charles Sallis, a history professor at Millsaps, and James Loewen, a sociology professor at Tougaloo College, published a new textbook in 1974.

But that book, entitled 'Mississippi, Conflict and Change,' was rejected by the State Textbook Commission.

Loewen and Sallis claimed in a federal suit that the commission rejected their book for political rather than pedagogical reasons.

A federal judge later ordered the commission to place their textbook on its approved list.

In 1981, when a new adoption cycle began, there were four textbooks offered for adoption. The four texts were the Bettersworth book which was an update of his 1959 edition, a revised and updated edition of the Loewen and Sallis book, and two new textbooks written by Ray Skates, a history professor at the University of Southern Mississippi and David G. Sansing, a professor of history at the University of Mississippi.

For the first time in many years teachers had a broad selection of textbooks from which to choose.

But, a recent decision by the State Accrediting Commission has moved Mississippi history from the ninth grade, where it is currently being taught to the seventh grade.

Actually, this decision was a compromise. The commission's original plans were to discontinue the course as a required subject.

This curriculum change will require new textbooks but because there is so little time before the new adoption cycle, it is not likely that seventh grade teachers will have the wide choices the ninth grade teachers had.

The curriculum change will also mean that many seventh grade social studies teachers will have to take a crash course in Mississippi history.

In the meantime, a suit has been filed by the NAACP seeking to declare the four existing ninth grade textbooks "inequitable and void."

The suit further asks that the State Board of Education be directed to "select one history book" that adequately reflects the "contributions made by Blacks, Indians and females towards the history of Mississippi."

This suit was filed before the curriculum change was made and it is not readily apparent what effect either action will have on the other.

The accrediting commission's decision to move Mississippi history from the ninth to the seventh grade is not widely known but among those who do know about it there is some dissatisfaction.

There is discussion of an effort to persuade the commission to return the course to the ninth grade level or perhaps add an interdisciplinary course on Mississippi's heritage to the high school curriculum.

In a public school curriculum that is subject to the pressures from science and mathematics and business interests it is imperative to protect the humanities.

History and literature must not be crowded out of the curriculum. For it is, after all, the old verities which are the subject matter of the humanities, and not the new technologies that will enable man to find his way through the maze of the centuries.

Your Pet's Health

Changing bird's diet Requires patience

By David L. Hammond

Instructor of Veterinary Medicine
Mississippi State University

In the last column, we dealt with the generalities of pet bird nutrition and some of the problems associated with common feeding practices and feedstuffs. In this segment, we will deal with ways to change a pet bird's diet and the proper diet.

Converting a bird to a new diet is rarely accomplished overnight and the bird should not be forced into submission by starvation. Sick, malnourished birds rarely survive the additional stress imposed by forcing them to eat a balanced, but unaccustomed diet.

Rather, the new balanced diet should be mixed with the accustomed diet in gradually increasing amounts until the bird learns to accept or is forced to try the new diet. Changing the diet requires a tremendous amount of patience and perseverance.

The following are some practical tips necessary for providing proper nutrition and changing a bird's diet.

- Instead of feeding large amounts of food once a day, feed smaller amounts at certain times of the day. Feed only as much feed as the bird will eat, otherwise the bird will pick through the food eating only what he wants.

- Offer a variety of cooked and raw vegetables and fruits to determine the bird's preference.

- Give treats from a spoon or your hand. These treats should be bits and pieces of food from the new diet.

- With "only birds," it is sometimes necessary to introduce a second bird who is accustomed to the new balanced diet. This sets up a competitive atmosphere and often the "only bird" will eat the new diet simply because the other bird is eating the diet.

- Again, mix the new diet with the old, gradually increasing the amount of new diet until all that is fed is the new.

The maintenance requirement for caged birds calls for a daily food intake of 10-15 percent of the bird's body weight. Smaller birds require the higher percentage. Birds that are growing, moulting, laying, recovering from an illness or are exceptionally active, require an increased food intake.

To calculate the amount of food requires knowing the average body weight of the bird. A canary weighs 20 grams, a parakeet weighs 30 grams, a cockatiel weighs 100 grams, a lovebird weighs 60 grams, an Amazon parrot weighs 300 to 500 grams, a cockatoo weighs 300 to 600 grams and a macaw weight 800 to 1,000 grams.

Feed and water the bird daily, limiting the amount of feed to the bird's daily needs. Some balanced diets for the various caged birds are as follows:

- Feed canaries 15 percent seeds, 15 percent greens, 15 percent bread, 37 percent hard-boiled egg, 15 percent vitamins and minerals and a slice of apple.

- Feed parakeets and cockatiels 15 percent seeds, 55 percent greens, 30 percent bread and bird's preference on cuttlefish, mineral block and fruit.

- Feed lovebirds 15 percent seeds, 40 percent greens, 30 percent bread, 15 percent fruit or berries and free choice of cuttlefish.

If a balanced diet is not immediately attainable or temporarily not possible, minimal nutritional support should consist of multivitamin drops and/or vitamin-mineral powders. Both are available at pet stores.

St. Stanislaus alumni reunion scheduled

The St. Stanislaus Alumni Association will hold its annual alumni reunion on Jan. 25 at the Jefferson-Orleans in Metairie, La. starting at 7:30 p.m.

Many of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart and faculty members who have taught at St. Stanislaus in the past will attend.

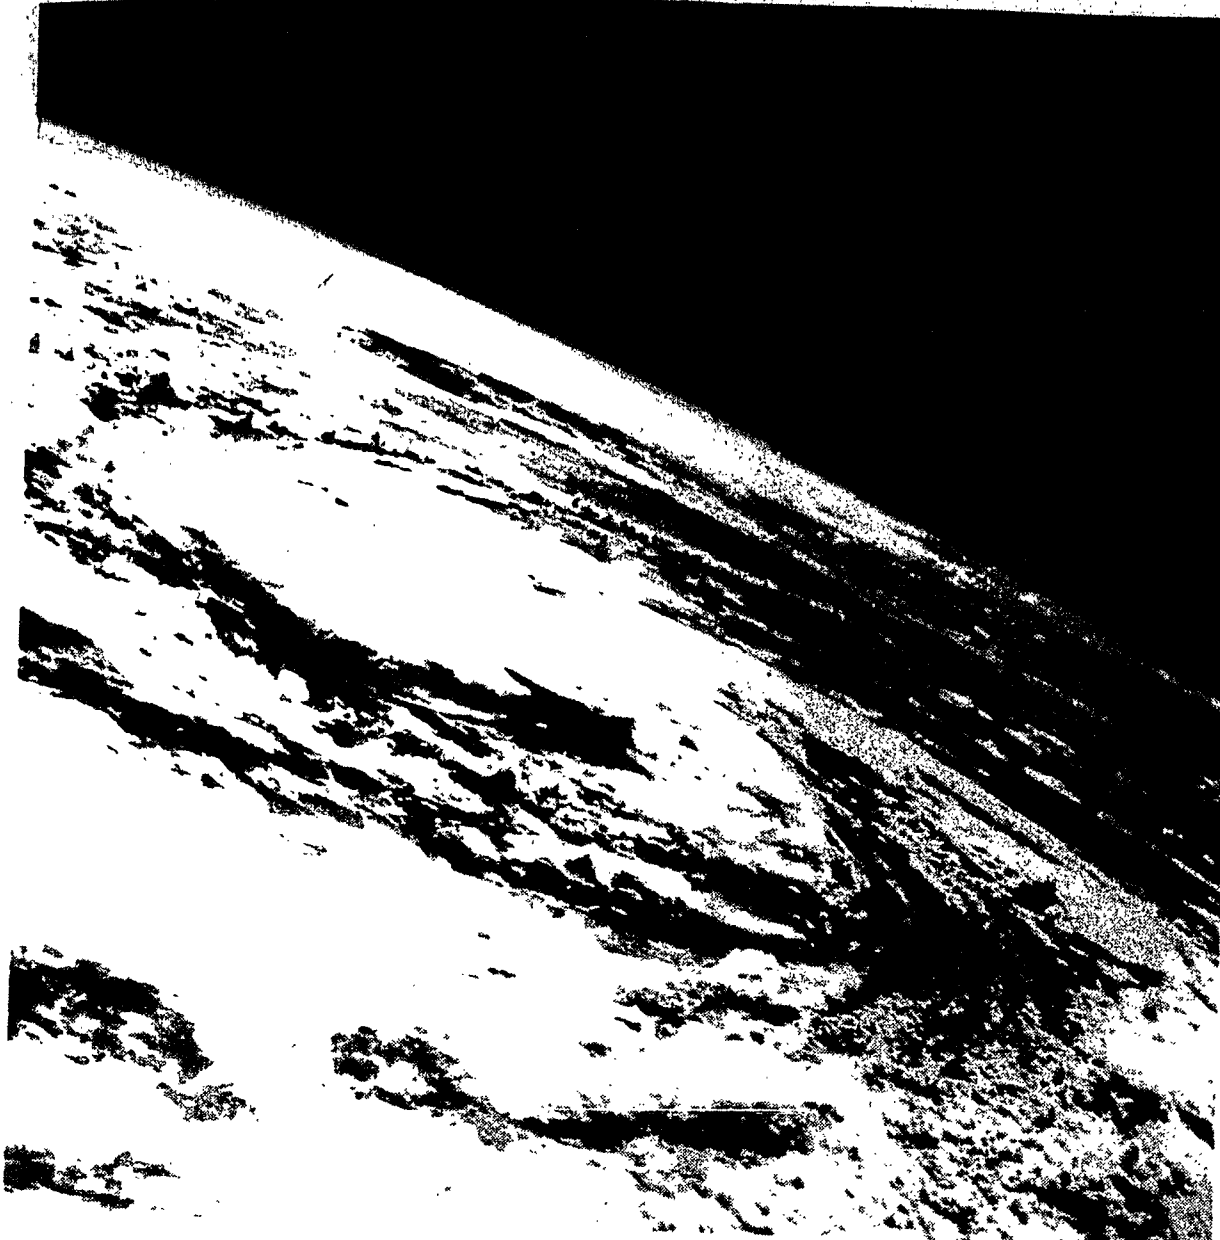

This year the alumni association will honor those classes celebrating a ten-year period since their graduation — '45, '56, '66 and '76, and the class celebrating its 25th year of graduation, 1961.

Certificates recognizing the time since their graduation will be given to those alumni of the "honor classes" who attend.

The reunion is open to all alumni of St. Stanislaus and their wives or dates. Reservations may be made in advance through the Alumni Office on the Bay St. Louis campus.

JOINS STAFF—Dr. Donald Ridalje recently joined the staff of the marine science program at the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park campus as a research associate. Ridalje, who earned a doctorate in biological oceanography at the University of Hawaii, is a specialist in primary productivity-phytoplankton research. He has come to USM from a research position at Moss Landing Marine Laboratories in Moss Landing, Calif., which is associated with the California state university system.

PLANET EARTH—A spectacular view of Hurricane Diana is photographed during a space shuttle mission and described in the new PBS series 'Planet Earth.' The new seven-part series premieres Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 8 p.m.

New college entrance requirements prompt correspondence course use

The number of high school students registering for correspondence courses at the University of Southern Mississippi is increasing rapidly as the fall 1988 deadline for stronger college entrance requirements approaches.

The stiffer entrance requirements, authorized by the College Board four years ago under the Educational Reform Act of 1982, will require four units of math, three units of English, three of science, and two and one-half of social studies.

Two units of either foreign language or additional math and science courses also are recommended.

According to Dr. Gene Tinnon, dean of the USM Division of Lifelong Learning, the number of individuals taking correspondence courses has steadily increased over the past 10 years, but there has been a dramatic increase in the demand for high school subjects in the past two years — particularly math and science courses.

"I believe the increase is due to two factors," Tinnon said. "I think it is due to the increased College Board regulations and it is due to a shortage of fully qualified math and science teachers in the state, especially in the small and rural schools."

In the early 80s, USM's high school correspondence registrations increased 13.9 percent, from 2,242 during the 1980-81 academic year to 2,555 in 1983-84. Last year's registrations were slightly down from the previous year, but according to Peggy Ladner, office manager in independent study at USM, applications have increased sharply this year.

"There is a big increase this year," Ladner said. "From July 1 through Sept. 30, we saw a 32 percent increase in high school correspondence over the same period last year."

Ladner said in one day alone, 21 members of a parochial high school enrolled in a single correspondence course in physics.

According to the Rev. Alfred Camp, principal of the 260-student

St. Aloysius High School in Vicksburg, the school chose the USM course because of cost and the availability of class materials.

"We have an excellent math teacher here who is finishing his doctorate at Memphis State University," Camp said. "But, he does not have 12 hours of physics (which would qualify him to teach the course) as required by the College Board. I think our students should be taking a course in physics (and all other preparatory courses) before entering any four-year institution."

In addition to Physics I and Physics II, USM's Independent Study offers high school studies in 13 business courses, nine English courses (including journalism), six in home economics, eight in foreign languages, 12 in math, six in the sciences and 11 in social sciences.

Scout Recognition Banquet set

The New Orleans Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its annual recognition banquet on Wednesday, Jan. 29, at University of New Orleans at 7 p.m.

The banquet program will include presentation of Silver Pelican and Silver Beaver awards.

The 1986 officers and executive board members will be installed. Districts will be recognized and the Order of The Arrow will conduct the ceremonies.

All adult scouters are urged to attend. For information, contact the Scout Service Center at 885-9800.

WHIPLASH

Whiplash injuries can result from a sudden backward and forward whipping movement of the neck, caused by an auto collision, a fall, a powerful slap on the back, or even a violent sneeze. The ligaments and muscles controlling the spinal segments are stretched or sprained, allowing the vertebrae to slip into abnormal positions. Nerves are then "pinched" or irritated, giving rise to headaches, nausea, dizziness and other pain.

One of Hollywood's hottest ladies, Donna Mills is the subject of an EXCLUSIVE two-part HOLLYWOOD MARQUEE. Columnist James S. Leach goes one-on-one with the beautiful star of the CBS hit prime-time soap "Knot's Landing," and finds more to Miss Mills than meets the eye.

Hollywood Marquee

by James S. Leach

HOLLYWOOD — There's more to Donna Mills than meets the eye.

For most of her career what meets the eye has opened many a door. Now with her career in full stride and all doors wide open, a new side of Miss Mills is beginning to surface. She's aware, she's ambitious and she's ready to make her move.

That move may be on a back lot in Hollywood or in a board room in New York. No matter the locations, this native of Chicago, will not settle for anything less than the top.

With a sly snicker, taken right from the mysterious, and at times downright devilish personality of her alter ego, Abby Cunningham of the CBS Television hit series "Knots Landing," she adds, "I'll still be acting, but not on as steady a basis as I'm doing right now. Also I'll be heavily involved with my production company."

Regarding her future position in the business world she cautiously steers around the subject by commenting, "There are some things I can't talk about, as they are still in the planning stages, yet they are very interesting and they would involve me very much in the business end of products... my own products."

Donna Mills, much like her character Abby Cunningham, is a woman of the 80's. She's happy to have come along at a time when women are making positive strides, but she still wants more. Is she happy with the role of women in television today? "Happier... although I'm shocked when I hear some people express the opinion that a woman alone can't carry a series. That's just not true; if women are given... strong leading roles, they then can carry a series."

Preparing for the upcoming season, Donna is anxious to see Abby revert to the wicked Abby of old. Last year, due to various storylines, she felt her character lost a bit of her evil way. "Abby wasn't really Abby last year... she just couldn't be as naughty as she wanted to be, and I just didn't have as much fun."

How much of that character is found in Donna Mills? "A lot, but I don't think we have all the same qualities. I don't think I'd do the kinds of things Abby does to get what she wants."

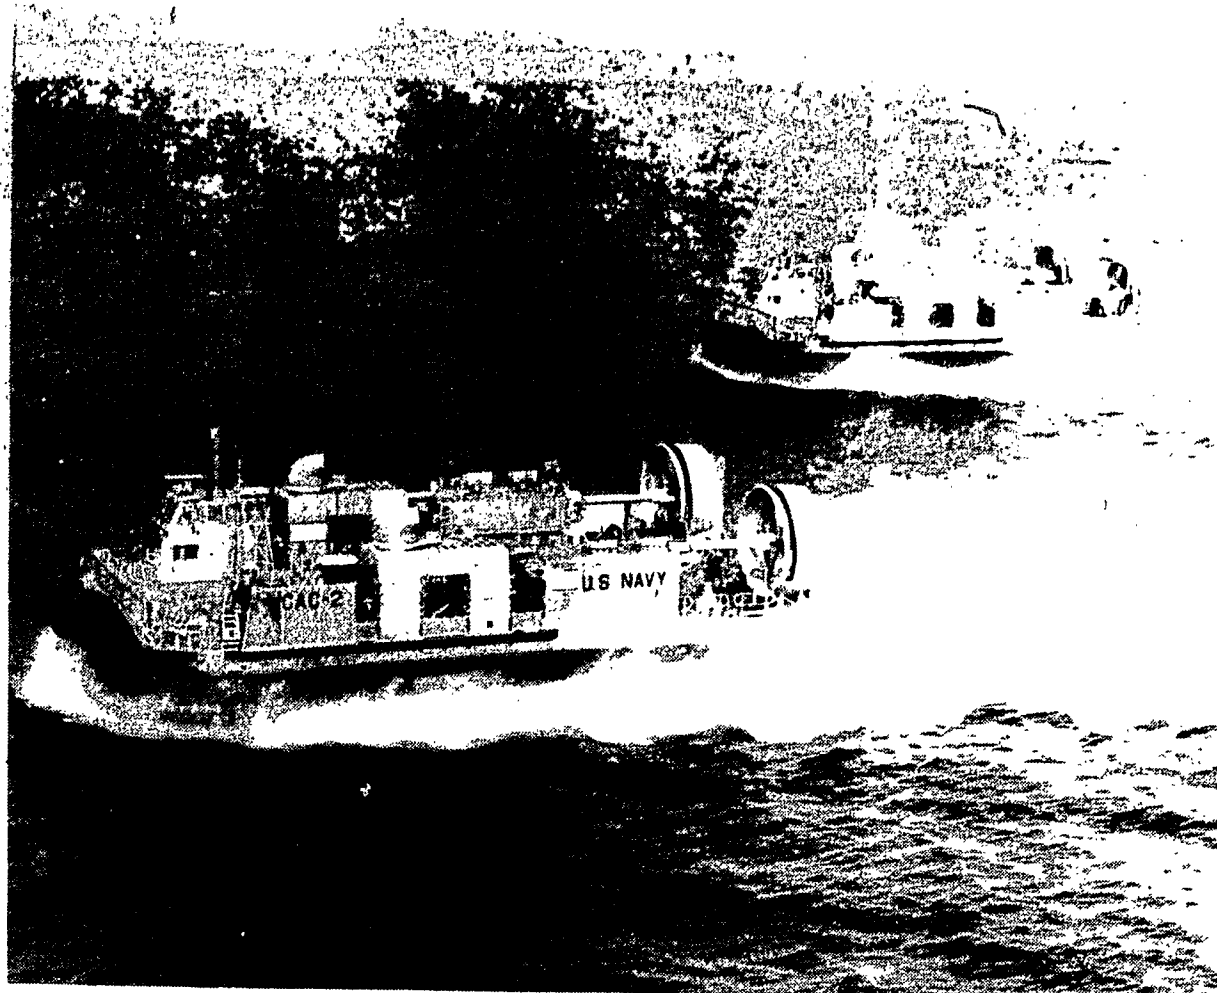

"When you play a character everyday, you bring a lot of yourself to that character." With that in mind Donna admits to certain similarities. "I have ambition, some guts and a lot of independence."

In a scene from one of this season's first episodes, co-star William Devane's character Gregory Sumner sums up Abby's attitude when he tells her, "What you want Abby is to be on the 'A' list. You want to go to the White House, but not just as any guest, but as the person the president listens to... you want power."

Next week we'll tell you of Donna's recent run-in with a would-be mugger.

AIR CUSHION LANDING CRAFT UNDERGO GULF OF MEXICO TESTS OFF PANAMA CITY, FLA.

Air cushion tests continue

The introduction of high-speed amphibious landing craft for the U.S. Navy is becoming a reality. The first two Landing Crafts, Air Cushion (LCAC) are being operated extensively at the U.S. Naval Coastal System Center (NCSC) located at Panama City, Fla.

A third LCAC is undergoing systems checkout at Bell Halter Inc., the manufacturing facility for Bell Aerospace Textron at New Orleans.

Bell Halter has nine more LCACs currently in production. In present plans, LCACs will be driven under their own power to the Naval Coastal Systems Center following trials on Lake Pontchartrain.

Eventually, the LCACs will be deployed to east and west coast Navy bases.

The LCAC provides a much needed heavy-lift, high-speed, long-range capability to give the Amphibious Task Force a modern means for rapid ship-to-shore delivery of Marine Corps troops and tactical equipment in amphibious assault operations.

Since the LCAC rides on a cushion of air, the craft does not have the operational constraints inherent in current conventional landing craft. The air cushion feature allows the LCAC to travel over both water and land.

This advantage greatly increases the number of potential landing sites and allows the LCAC to come ashore in previously inaccessible areas. Troops and equipment will now be deployed inland on dry terrain, thus removing a significant obstacle at the surf zone created by a bottleneck of conventional landing craft.

Oral history planned on D-Day

A project to collect oral histories from D-Day participants has been announced by Dr. Stephen E. Ambrose, director of the Eisenhower Center at the University of New Orleans. The collection will be housed in the UNO archives and made available to scholars, he said.

Ambrose, Eisenhower's biographer and author of "Pegasus Bridge, June 6, 1944," has contributed the transcripts of his own interviews with Ike, and with the British, German, and French participants at Pegasus Bridge, to start the collection. He wants to get hundreds more. "There are so many untold stories from that day," he says, "and so many of those who can tell them are not going to be around forever. The time to collect these stories is now."

Calling D-Day "the most important day of the 20th Century," Ambrose says that "it will be studied so long as Western Civilization lasts. For the Allies, it was a gigantic team effort, the largest single undertaking of all time. Hundreds of thousands of men were directly involved, and millions indirectly took part in the invasion."

Ambrose, who is Alumni Distinguished Professor of History at UNO plans to stress this "team" aspect in the collection. "We know pretty much what the top brass did," he says. "What we need is the story of the private at Omaha Beach, the sailor on the LST, the fighter pilot overhead, the code-breaker back in England, the factory worker in New Orleans who built the landing craft." Ambrose urges anyone who played any role whatsoever in

DR. STEPHEN AMBROSE

D-Day to write him at UNO. He will return a set of detailed instructions on how to prepare an oral history on a tape recorder. A typewritten transcript will then be made and become part of the permanent collection. Ambrose, who is the author of over 18 historical novels, plans to publish the material in book form for the 50th Anniversary of D-Day in 1994.

To participate write: Dr. Stephen E. Ambrose, Department of History, University of New Orleans, Lakefront, New Orleans, LA 70148.

Faulkner's 'As I Lay Dying' may be filmed by Ole Miss; script being prepared

The National Endowment for the Humanities has awarded the Center for Study of Southern Culture at The University of Mississippi $61,162 to develop a script for a film of William Faulkner's novel "As I Lay Dying."

The screenplay is being written by Robert Clem, an independent New York filmmaker who teaches at New York University and whose films have been shown at film festivals throughout the country.

A committee of Faulkner scholars is providing expert advice for the script, which will remain faithful to the story and will follow the film through production. Members include Associate Center Director Ann Abadie, English department Chairman Evans Harrington, and Dr. Doreen Fowler, associate professor of English. Others represent various universities across the country.

The next step, said Center Director William Ferris, is to present the script with a second proposal for some $1.5 million to produce a feature-length motion picture. Should NEH approve the production, a major director would be contracted and top-name performers sought for the film, which would be made in and around Faulkner's hometown of Oxford.

4-H News

By Daney Jackson
Hancock County 4-H Youth Agent

This is the second of a series of articles about 4-H, the 4-H program in Hancock County, and how you can get involved in this youth education program.

Each organization has certain symbols with which it identifies. The best known one for 4-H is the four-leaf clover with an H on each leaf. This emblem is protected from commercial exploitation and reserved for the youth program of Cooperative Extension by a federal criminal statute.

The four H's stand for Head, Heart, Hands and Health. These are emphasized as the basis for the four-fold development of youth involved in the program.

HEAD - Thinking, making decisions, understanding and gaining knowledge.

HEART - Concerning oneself with the welfare of others, accepting responsibilities of citizenship and developing attitudes and values.

HANDS - Using hands to learn new skills, developing pride and respect for one's work.

HEALTH - Developing and practicing healthful living, physically, mentally, spiritually, and socially.

The 4-H colors are green and white. Green is symbolic of growth and white of purity.

The 4-H motto is "To Make The Best Better," implying that 4-H members continue to strive to improve on their previous best performance.

The 4-H slogan is "Learn By Doing." This has been a basic characteristic of 4-H since the corn clubs, when school superintendents believed that they could make "readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic" have meaning if they could get the students to make practical use of them.

The 4-H pledge is "I Pledge My Head to Clearer Thinking, My Heart to Greater Loyalty, My Hands to Greater Service, and My Health to Better Living for My Club, My Community, My Country, and My World."

This pledge was adopted at the first national 4-H Camp (now National 4-H Conference) in Washington, D.C. in 1927. "And My World" was added during the 1970's as it became obvious that as a country we must also be concerned with the world.

Anyone interested in learning more about 4-H, or wishing to get involved either as an adult volunteer or as a member should contact the Hancock County Extension 4-H Youth Agent at 467-5456.

Update On Dentistry

New Technology Offers First Natural-Looking Dental Crowns

One American in twenty will need a dental crown or cap in 1986. Now for the first time, these patients can have a crown that is virtually indistinguishable from natural teeth — and one that offers important dental health advantages, too.

Thanks to more than five years of intensive research by Dentsply International and Corning Glass Works, a unique ceramic material has been created that closely duplicates natural tooth enamel in hardness, wear resistance and translucency.

The most dramatic characteristic of the dental crown made of the DICOR ceramic material is its amazing translucency. The source of this translucency is a crystalline content that is many times that of conventional porcelain crowns. Most dental crowns have an opaque substructure (often metal) that when combined with conventional dental porcelains inhibits light from shining through the crown. But the high concentration of tiny mica crystals in DICOR material causes light to be scattered and reflected in the same manner as natural tooth enamel, and it requires no opaque substructure.

According to Kenneth Malament, D.D.S., M.Sc.D., a fellow of the American College of Prosthodontics, "DICOR is an ideal restorative material that is equal to tooth enamel in its ability to absorb and transmit light." He pointed out that "it is a unique restorative crown material that can be bonded onto other teeth."

Dr. Malament said that many of the 350 DICOR crowns he has applied "seem to have a chameleon effect you don't see in other crowns. The effect is due to the high translucency of these crowns, which enable them to take on the color of surrounding teeth and oral tissue. They definitely blend better into the patient's total dental environment."

The ceramic crowns provide more than improved beauty and naturalness. They offer unique health benefits to patients not available in other dental restorations. Since they are completely metal-free, dentists can x-ray them as they would natural teeth, allowing for periodic checks for tooth decay under the crown.

Patients who wear crowns often complain of unpleasant hot and cold sensations. These sensations are usually due to the metal substructures found in crowns. The absence of any metal in the DICOR crown and low thermal conductivity like that of natural tooth enamel, make it a better insulator against extreme heat and cold.

New research studies at Forsyth Dental Center in Boston have also shown that DICOR crowns resist plaque accumulation, with significantly less plaque adhering to them than to natural teeth. As a result, patients can look forward to healthier gum tissue and improved oral hygiene.

ACT scores of diocesan high schools top state and national averages, study shows

The averages of the scores of the five Catholic high schools in the Biloxi diocese were collectively above the state and national averages in the American College Testing Program (ACT Test) for the 1985-86 academic year, according to the diocesan Office of Education.

The average composite score of the five schools is 19.4, significantly higher than the state average of 15.5 and higher than the national average of 18.6, according to a comparison study.

The study was conducted for the Office of Education by Brother Celestine Algero, SC, principle of St. Stanislaus High School, Bay St. Louis, according to Sister Joanne Cozzi, DC, diocesan superintendent of schools.

The ACT program is designed to test the readiness of students to attend college and is used by colleges in accepting students and assigning classes.

The five Catholic high schools reported their four sub-tests (English, mathematics, social studies and natural science) and composite scores to the superintendent's office for use in the comparison study. The schools are: Our Lady Academy, St. Stanislaus, Bay St. Louis; Mercy Cross, Biloxi; St. John, Gulfport; Our Lady of Victories, Pascagoula.

The Office of Education declined to compare scores from any Catholic high schools and public high schools in respective areas, but emphasized ACT scores can be obtained from each Catholic high school's guidance office for comparison.

A chart of the ACT averages from the Catholic Diocese of Biloxi School System, the state and national averages, as prepared by the study, is attached.

	CATHOLIC SCHOOLS	STATE	NATIONAL
English	19.4	16.4	18.1
Mathematics	18.2	13.1	17.2
Soc. Studies	17.8	14.2	17.4
Nat. Science	21.5	17.9	21.2

Ole Miss center director served as adviser on "Color Purple"

While Mississippi theatregoers eagerly await the critically-acclaimed Steven Spielberg film "The Color Purple," Dr. Bill Ferris at The University of Mississippi waits with special anticipation.

Ferris, director of the Ole Miss Center for the Study of Southern Culture, served as adviser for the film — marshaling the considerable resources of the Ole Miss collections to help Spielberg produce authentic settings and composer Quincy Jones create a musical score that is true to the story and period.

It was Jones who called Ferris for help after a recommendation from author Alex Haley, a national consultant for the Center. Ironically, as Jones soon learned, Ferris and Alice Walker (author of the best seller on which the film is based) are friends, having worked together when Ferris taught at Jackson State University some years ago.

Jones spent five days in Mississippi and, for months, carried on a running dialogue by telephone and mail with Ferris and his staff.

At Ole Miss he reviewed many of filmmaker Ferris' documentary productions, reviewed hundreds of photographs of houses, juke-joints and other settings appropriate to the film and listened to authentic black music from the South and Africa.

He and Ferris also listened to music at several black clubs in Holly Springs. Jones also used the resources of the Ole Miss Blues Archive.

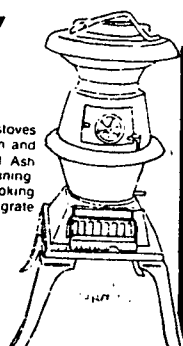

Because of a busy schedule, Ferris was able to travel to Hollywood only once during production. While there, he advised Spielberg on Southern settings and music and worked closely with one of the film's actresses, Akosua Busia from Ghana, on her speech and manner.

Ferris' name is listed in the film's credits.

Q. What are the affects of smoking "pot" for a long time, like over 15 years?

(L.B., Clinton, MS)
A. There are numerous, more than 7,000, published medical and scientific studies documenting the damage that marijuana does to the body's various systems.

Heart. Marijuana use increases the heart rate as much as 50 percent and can cause chest pains and very low blood pressure in people with heart problems.

Lungs. Repeated inhalation of smoke into the lungs causes inflammation and affects pulmonary functions. One study on long-term use found that smoking five marijuana joints a week was more harmful than almost six packs of cigarettes a week.

Immune System. Some studies suggest that heavy marijuana smoking affects the white cell formation hindering the body's ability to fight infection.

Did you know that not one study gives marijuana a clean bill of health?

Photo Center

A black and white photograph of a toilet. The toilet tank is dark and has a white rectangular logo on its side that says "Springs" in a stylized font. The toilet bowl is white and is partially visible. The background is dark and textured.

The image is a high-contrast, black and white scan of a textured surface, likely a book cover or endpaper. A bright, curved band of light runs across the top, possibly representing a hinge or a piece of tape. The rest of the image is filled with a dense, grainy texture of black and white speckles. Near the bottom center, there is a small, faint rectangular area that appears to contain some illegible text or a small graphic.
